Greenheck Fan Corporation to Open Saltillo, Mexico Production Facility

Schofield, Wisconsin – the Greenheck Fan Corporation has announced plans to establish a manufacturing facility in Saltillo, Coahuila, Mexico to produce ventilation equipment to serve the heating and cooling industry market.

The company has contracted with The Offshore Group for 34, 822 square feet of industrial space in the La Angostura Industrial Park. Greenheck expects to employ approximately 50 - 75 workers during the first phase of the project.

According to the company's General Manager, Dave Kallstrom, "Our new facility in Saltillo will optimally position us to supply our most important customers in Mexico, and will enable us to investigate additional market opportunities. The services that The Offshore Group provides will assure that we focus on our core mission".

Greenheck is the leading global manufacturer of a wide range of air movement and control equipment for commercial, industrial, and institutional buildings. The company, which began operations in 1947, employs more than 2,600 at multiple manufacturing and distribution centers around the world. Greenheck is headquartered in Schofield, Wisconsin.
